Why Harp?

Graceful and soothing, the harp is unique among instruments. It rests on your shoulder and fills your head with lovely tones as you play. Harp is easy to understand and very inviting as a first instrument.

“Just right!” is what many people say about the Jolie Harp.

The height, balance, tone, and overall feel of the instrument is captivating. Gorgeous cherry wood grain and clean design elements make it a winner in our lineup.

This design features new joint engineering where the neck meets the pillar and body to give the best tuning stability and harp longevity. If you build this harp from our kit, you'll especially appreciate the close fit of the parts and ease of assembly.

If you purchase the finished harp, we will install a full set of top quality sharpening levers and provide a nicely padded gig bag for carrying the harp out of the house. The finish we apply is a handsome clear lacquer coating that enhances the natural color of the cherrywood.

The Cheyenne 36

Professional harpists often look for a full 5-octave range, and our new Cheyenne 36 is just the answer. It has the same big soundbox of our former Regency Harp that was famous for its rich booming voice. We have lightened up the frame and added more strings to make this an even better harp.

People often think this harp has an amplifier in it! But no, the acoustics of this size sound chamber just happen to be perfect for projecting great sound.

Building this harp from our kit is a pleasure too. We've made many engineering improvements over the years to provide fabulous sound, structural integrity, ease of assembly, and tuning stability.

Voyageur Harp available in Cherry or Mahogany

One of our most popular harps for many years, the Voyageur Harp has the right balance of sound, range, height, weight and style. This is a performance-quality instrument that easily fits in the back seat of a sedan, so people carry it around frequently for playing in churches, schools, hospitals, and nursing homes. Thirty-three strings gives you a 4-1/2 octave range - plenty of room for a full and rich sound.

You can make a family heirloom by building this harp and signing inside the soundboard. We frequently hear touching stories from families whose parent or grandparent built a harp for a youngster who then performs with it at school, church, and family gatherings.

The Voyageur Harp

The Belle Harp

Designed as an entry-level floor harp, the Belle Harp excels over comparably priced harps. Great sound, rigid stability, and clean lines make this a beauty, and we have not skimped on the fine quality cherry wood to give it a touch of elegance. It is easily portable too, at just 17 pounds.

Our new pre-cut joints at the front and back of the neck take the guesswork out of fitting and fastening the parts together. Builders will enjoy the quick, simplified assembly of this instrument. Shown without sharpening levers, but you can add them any time after the harp is finished and strung. You can install just a few levers to give you the most common key changes, or add a full set of 30 (one for each string).

Ah, the luck of the Irish! Resonance and rich tones are not normal descriptions of a harp small enough to hold on your lap, but the Limerick Lap Harp is a stand-out among small harps. The body is wider and deeper than most, so it sings with a hearty voice.

The shapely neck and pillar are what make this a classic Celtic design. The front and back of the body slide into slots in the frame, making this project easy to assemble. Sharping levers and gig bag are optional accessories for the kit-buyer, and you can purchase them separately at a later date if you'd like to spread out your costs.

If you have your Limerick Lap Harp professionally assembled at our shop by our luthiers, we will install sharpening levers and provide a gig bag in the package price.

The Reverie Harp is a type of psaltery we designed specifically for therapeutic applications. It is tuned so there are no wrong notes which means that ANY-ONE can make beautiful, soothing sounds on this instrument.

Caregivers all over the world are finding the Reverie Harp to be an invaluable tool. It is being used in children's hospitals, memory care units, VA hospitals, counseling clinics, hospice care, and many other settings.

It is equally suited to provide care for the care-givers. Just 10 minutes of sitting quietly, cradling the harp against your chest and enjoying the soothing sounds and vibrations can provide a wonderful respite from the stress of daily living.

“Often called upon to perform at family gatherings... Dad would bribe her with a quarter or another dish of icecream, which was all the incentive she needed.”

A Harpist, Some Assembly Required

What might happen if you start your child on harp lessons at a young age? Stephanie Claussen can tell you. She started at age 7 with the 31-string Gothic Harp kit from Musicmakers, built by her Dad. It didn't hurt, of course, that her neighbor happened to be an advanced-level harp instructor.

Stephanie began her musical journey with the Gothic Harp as her first instrument. "Lever harps are easier because you set the key signature before starting a a great way to get wedding gigs – if she sees a young couple walk by, she breaks into Pachelbel's Canon to signal that she could provide music for their ceremony!

When it came to deciding what life after high school was going to be like the only thing that naturally felt right was to go to the University of Minnesota and major in the harp. Claussen had cut her first CD by age 12 so she had something to sell at the Renaissance Festival, but since earning her degree she has produced a Christmas piece. For the most part, you needn't worry about sharps and flats." Claussen's teacher taught her folk, classical music, some hymns and seasonal tunes of which Stephanie was often called on to perform at family gatherings. Dad would bribe her with a quarter per song or another dish of ice cream and that was all the incentive she needed.

Before long her teacher suggested applying to perform at the local Renaissance Festival. At age 11 she became the youngest harp player in the cast. She continues to play the Ren Fest today citing that it is CD and teamed up with Mel Bay Publications to publish a music book to go along with the CD. Her arrangements are fresh and relaxing, with lots of ornamentation to enhance the traditional carols. This is a recording we at Musicmakers love because of her delightful expressiveness and fresh arrangements.

Recently, Stephanie has acquired Musicmakers' new Jolie harp and considers it a favorite because of its beautiful design and practical size for travel when she is teaching harp, playing weddings, church services and various other performances to keep her a career-harpist.
